BURSCRIPTIONS TO THE EVENING WORLD

VOL. 30......NQ. 10,508

HELP THE SICK BABIES.

The Summer is close upon us. The present week, beginning its career in May, will close it in June. What mem-ories of balmy days and sweet blossoms and grateful sea-breezes are brought up at the mere mention of these fairest mouths of a year yet young!

But, abruptly though it turn the thought, life in June is not for everybody a merry tune. In that mouth and in mouths to follow, there will be in this great city hordes of people who will swelter and suffer and feel almost that the curses outweigh the blessings of Summer.

Among these sufferers will be countless little children, to whom bad air, insufficient food and lack of proper care will bring an increase of the ills to which flesh is naturally heir.

In previous years it has been the privalege of THE EVENING WORLD through its Sick Baby Fund and Summer Corps of Free Physicians to minister to these children of poverty and alleviate as best it raight their trouble and their pain. This year the work is egain to be taken up and the Fund and Corps are to be establi on a basis which enlarged experience and resources will render broader yet.

THE EVENING WORLD Proposes to break its own record in this field, and to that end invites the cordial co-operation of all who feel it sweet to do a deed for humanity's sake.

The Young Men Lack Courage.

The young women of to-day are better fitted for the marriage relation than they ever were before, and if any young men who are able to support a wife comfortably (not luxuriously, as many seem to think that is aburiously, as many seem to think that is absolutely necessary) do not marry, the fault lies with the young mem-they need courage badly. Of course, a great deal can be said on both sides on such a topic as this, and it is well to note that the reason why many young men do not marry is because the young women cannot tor will not) decide for themselves.
It is not so much a lack of courage with them as "a making up of their minds."

The reason so many young men don't marry rests solely in the fact that they have to marry rests solely in the fact that they have to mot met their ideal. Every sensible person, after attaining maturity of mind and a competency to support a wife, looks about him for a life matz. And in a congenial union lies the essence of true happiness. All joys, all pleasures and delights are insignificant to the bliss of a home.

An unmarried man leads an unsettled life. He has no hopes, no ambition and in impairation to lead him onward; he feels fortaaten.

Some Potent Reasons.

To the Editor:
The reasons are manifold and differ naturally with individual cases, but the leading causes are not so very difficult to trace. They are: The faulty and careless bringing up of girls by their parents, which leads to a cer-tain dwarfing of those qualities of refine-ment, gentleness, self-secritics and maidenty dignity in a word, to the during of the pre-dignity—in a word, to the duiling of the preeminently feminine qualities so captivating to the male senses.

In the mountainous region of the far West a car has been known to tumble down a precipice and thus become lost, but here such a thing could not happen.

The subject of the mysterious car graw upon his mind to such an extent that he determined to find that car or perial in the attempt. Accordingly he went a few weeks and to the station at which place the car was last heard from, and started after the truant box car.

Coming down the line to a point but a few units above Ishpeming, he went is on a branch to a mine that is a smell shipper and warre the track is not kept open in wall the continue to the suddenly ran onto No. 1,482. Upon investi ation he found that farmer who lived in the vicinity had been and was still, using the car as a barn, there being six horses in the car at the time.

It is needless to say that the track was ploughed out the next bundar, and the tarmer's barn is now engaged in the whest traffic. sarmer's barn is now engaged in the when
